

2024 NAATSIHWP National Conference

"Reaping the rewards of resilience"

KEYNOTE SPEAKER

JANET STAJIC

PhD Candidate, NAATSIHWP Member and Professional Ambassador

Janet Stajic is a Yidinji-Jirrbal woman of Far North Queensland who grew up in Brisbane. Her experience working in Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander health has been as an Aboriginal Health Worker, in program management, policy, and research roles within the Aboriginal community controlled, public, not-for-profit and university sectors. Janet has recently submitted her PhD through the University of Queensland (UQ) Faculty of Medicine and works as a researcher for the UQ Poche Centre for Indigenous Health.

Janet's research advocates for and aims to bring greater recognition of the Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander Health Worker and Health Practitioner workforce. She is also a Professional Ambassador for the National Association of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Health Workers and Practitioners (NAATSIHWP).

2024 NAATSIHWP National Conference

"Reaping the rewards of resilience"

KEYNOTE SPEAKER

JAYDE FULLER

National Director, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Health Strategy Unit
AHPRA

Jayde Fuller is a Gamilaroi woman and the National Director of the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Health Strategy Unit. She has a Bachelor of Arts, Double Majoring in Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Studies and has worked in the public health sector with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Peoples for 11 years in policy development and cultural safety education.

Jayde has worked for Ahpra since 2019 and leads the implementation of the 'National Scheme's Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Health and Cultural Safety Strategy 2020-2025.'