Welcome

The National Association of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Health Workers and Practitioners (NAATSIHWP) acknowledges Traditional Custodians across Australia.

We value your knowledge, wisdom, communities, cultures and ongoing connections to the lands, waterways and seas. In particular, we pay tribute to the Ngunnawal and Ngambri peoples on whose lands the NAATSIHWP office is situated. It is a privilege conducting our business on the lands you have occupied and cared for, over thousands of years

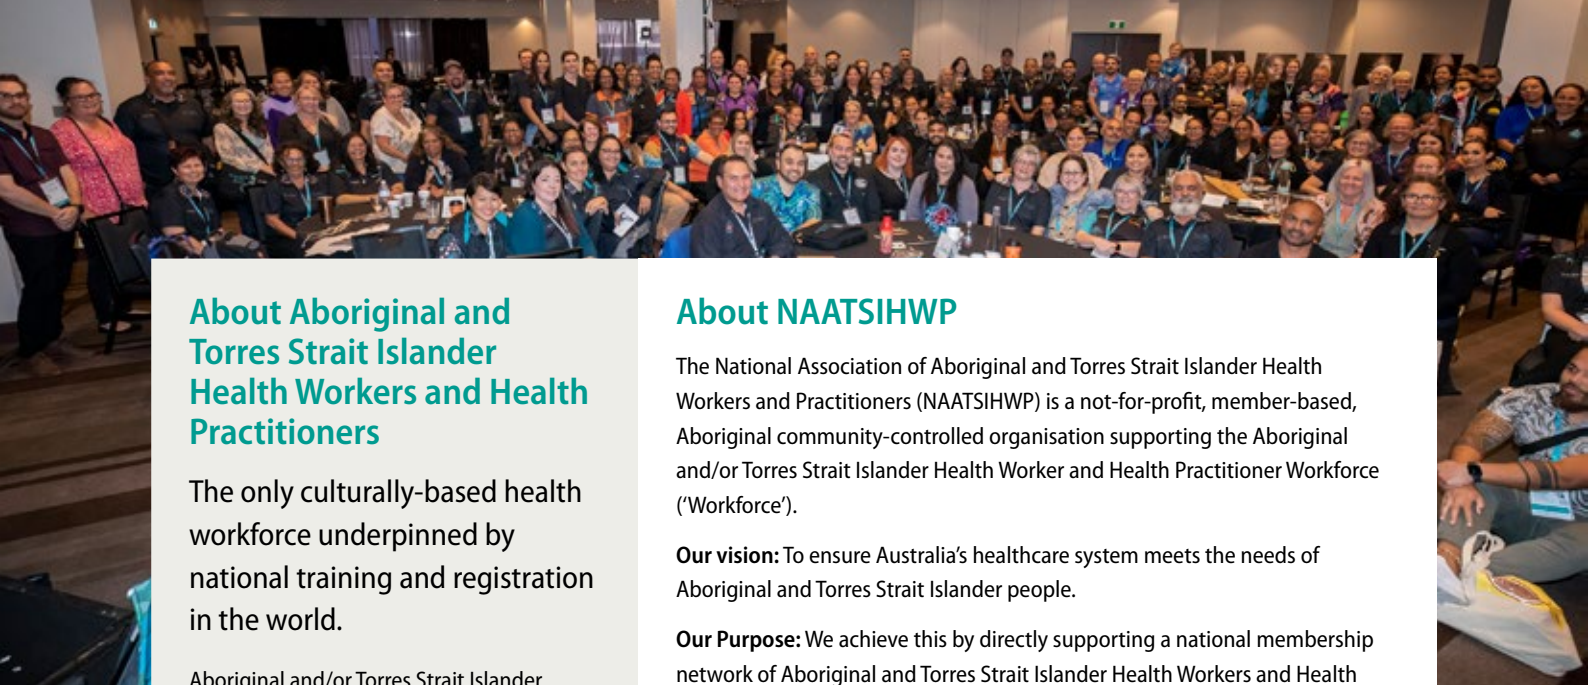

About the Logo

The NAATSIHWP logo was designed by NAATSIHWP Founding Member Patrick Jagamarra Ah Kit. It represents Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people coming from all parts of the country to form the Association, and uses colours that reinforce our cultural identity – who we are. The U shape represents all Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples of our country. The small boomerangs represent our people's toughness and resilience to handle all situations. The bigger boomerangs are windbreaks and shields that provide safety, stability, education, guidance and vision towards the future.

About the artwork

This artwork by Jordan Lovegrove, a Ngarrindjeri artist from South Australia, represents working together for healing. The red meeting places and paths in between represent the community, and the little dots are healing. The white meeting places represent the different health organisations and workers reaching out to the community. We note the first iteration of the NAATSIHWP Artwork included orange/yellow meeting places, which have now been changed to red. This variation has been approved by Jordan.

About Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Health Workers and Health Practitioners

The only culturally-based health workforce underpinned by national training and registration in the world.

Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander Health Workers and Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander Health Practitioners are two distinct but related professions that together comprise the Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander Health Worker and Health Practitioner Workforce (Workforce). The Workforce was established by Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people in response to the need for geographically accessible and culturally-safe healthcare.

Skilled Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander traditional healers have provided effective, high quality clinical and cultural care for thousands of years. Knowledge passed down and developed for generations were only disrobed by colonisation and subsequent dispossession, which has resulted in disconnection from family and country, and loss of significant traditional knowledge.

Unofficial accounts and narratives indicate the Workforce started to re-emerge close to a century ago. Since this time, it has continued to grow and progress under the guidance, knowledge, and leadership of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people every step of the way.

With no mainstream equivalents, the professions play a unique and critical role in ensuring Australia's health system meets the needs of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people. They restore trust, act as health system navigators, deliver culturally-safe care, play a role in early intervention and prevention, and improve both access to healthcare services and the patient experience.

About NAATSIHWP

The National Association of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Health Workers and Practitioners (NAATSIHWP) is a not-for-profit, member-based, Aboriginal community-controlled organisation supporting the Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander Health Worker and Health Practitioner Workforce ('Workforce').

Our vision: To ensure Australia's healthcare system meets the needs of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people.

Our Purpose: We achieve this by directly supporting a national membership network of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Health Workers and Health Practitioners.

Our work focuses on five key priority areas:

- Workforce Support and Professional Development: We offer a range of professional development programs, events, forums, and resources to our members to ensure that Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Health Workers and Health Practitioners are equipped with the skills, knowledge and support needed to deliver high-quality, culturally-safe healthcare.
- Workforce Utilisation and Scopes of Practice: We are delivering several projects and programs to ensure that the qualifications, skills and roles of our Workforce are being effectively utilised at the community, organisation, state and national levels.
- Workforce Recruitment, retention and career pathways: We are spearheading a range of initiatives to support the sustainable growth of the Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander Health Worker and Health Practitioner Workforce across the country.
- Leadership and Advocacy: We collaborate with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Peak Health Organisations, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Community-Controlled Health Organisations (and government bodies to represent and advocate for the needs of our members. We also provide strong Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander health leadership in various national forums and campaigns.
- Embedding First Nations Health Workforces Globally: We are paving the way for our Workforce to shape the growth and development of other First Nations Health Workforce globally.

From the Chair

It gives me immense pleasure to invite you to be a sponsor at the 2025 National Association of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Health Workers and Practitioners (NAATSIHWP) Professional Development Symposium that will take place on 16–17 September on the sovereign lands of the Larrakia people of Garramilla (Darwin).

A strong Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander Health Worker and Health Practitioner Workforce is a powerful driver of sustainable outcomes in health, education, and employment for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people and communities. While there have been many efforts to grow and strengthen our Workforce, a long-term, systems-wide approach is yet to be prioritised. That's why the Symposium theme this year is 'Investing in Our Workforce'.

As an Aboriginal Health Worker myself, like many of my fellow Board Members, I understand the day-to-day realities, the ups and down, the challenges and the ever-giving rewards of this profession. Our bi-annual symposiums, capped at 120 delegates, provide a unique opportunity for our Workforce to continue their professional development journey. Held over two days, delegates will participate in a series of workshops and sessions focused on cutting-edge clinical and primary healthcare practices, while further enhancing their knowledge and skills to respond to the evolving needs of our community and advancements in healthcare.

By sponsoring NAATSIHWP, you will be helping us to continue supporting our national membership network of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Health Workers and Health Practitioners. This will assist to ensure Australia's healthcare system meets the needs of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people.

As a NAATSIHWP sponsor, you will have an opportunity to enhance your brand exposure, improve your company image and gain access to our diverse and influential network of Aboriginal and/or Torres Strait Islander Health Workers and Health Practitioners.

We are grateful to have your support in making this possible and look forward to meeting you in Garramilla very soon.

David Follent
NAATSIHWP Chairperson

Location

The 2025 NAATSIHWP Professional Development Symposium will be held on the traditional lands of the Larrakia people of Garramilla (Darwin). Larrakia country stretches from the Cox Peninsula in the west to Gunn Point in the north, Adelaide River in the east and south to the Manton Dam area.

Many popular sites around Garramilla also hold specific meaning for Larrakia people, such as Stokes Hill, Mindil Beach, Rapid Creek and Casuarina Beach. All Larrakia people have a deep, spiritual connection to this country and are responsible for making sure it is respected by all those that use it.
